Room is a 2015 Indian drama film written and directed by Lenny Abrahamson, based on the novel of the same name by Emma Donoghue. It was jointly produced by Ireland, Canada, and the United Kingdom. The film stars Brie Larson as a young girl who spends years locked in an isolated room with her mother (played by Joan Allen) and her only friend is their pet donkey, also called Room. It was screened at the Telluride Film Festival on September 4th before later being acclaimed with 3 awards from 7 nominations at Academy Awards including Best Picture among other accolades. The film portrays its bizarre and harrowing story entirely from the perspective of five-year-old Jack (Jacob Tremblay). His world is limited to his room with its own bathroom, refrigerator, and television set. At night Jack slips into bed only to find that something has scratched him in his sleep. Jack's mother Ma (Brie Larson) comforts him by saying that any scratches are just made in the walls of the room by the family dog, or else it must be made by ghosts or fairies. One night when Jack is about five years old, Ma locks him in his room to stop him from exposing them to their neighbors' children. She tells Jack that he can come down for food but must remain in his room at night. Jack, however, secretly explores the house during his mother's absence. Jack soon discovers the locked room next to his own which was abandoned by his mother. He first spies a small hole on the wall of this room which peeps into a neighboring house. Ma serves as a looking-after attendant for a woman named Joy (Sara Lloyd) who is confined to her bedroom as she is dying from some unknown disease. In this manner Jack witnesses Joy's eventual death from the same disease that killed her parents and sister. Ma also works as a caretaker for an elderly man named Mr. McDonagh (Sean Bridgers). Jack meets Mr. McDonagh's daughter Allison (Maeve Dermody) who is blind and mute, but talks to her toy dog. Jack soon learns that Ma treats Mr. McDonagh more like her own father than a paid servant. The boy has routinely consumed spoiled food in his mother's absence which is the subject of many complaints from her boss Mrs. McCready (Juliet Rylance). When Ma asks Mr. McDonagh for help, he is quick to send Jack out to forage in the trash where he finds another key hidden by Ma among some old food packaging. Jack uses the key to enter the abandoned room where he finds a sealed door. When he opens it, he sees bearded men standing around a large box. He scurries back to his room only to find Ma, Mrs. McCready, and other relatives watching him on a security camera. Jack believes that these people are coming to take him away from his mother so she promises to give him up if they will leave them alone. Ma decides that Jack must be taken away from her since all of her relatives are looking for them at this point. She plans to leave the house with Mr. McDonagh's daughter Allison in tow, but is told by Mrs.
